Henry C. Richmond, former city editor of the Chief and for many years a well known Omaha newspaper man, has been greeting old friends here for a few days while placing stock for the Nebraska Consolidated Mills Company. This organization has sold its stock heavily in Hastings and Superior and also in Franklin county. M. W. Yeager of Omaha accompanied Col. Richmond, and they expect to resume work here after Christmas.

CALF CLUB

The Red Cloud State Bank Calf Club came to a close, and taken as a whole, it was a success.

Weather conditions were against us and consequently several members took a loss on their calves. In several instances members did not draw very good calves and several instances they did not give their calves the best of care and feed.

We were handicapped last spring in being compelled to buy 32 calves in one week's time, and not having any place to assemble them.

The experience that the members received in caring for and feeding these calves cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. One fact stands out that it pays to feed your calves and the cost of feed is small compared to the returns. Some of the members kept a record of feed fed, and it ranged from $20 to $50. The best illustration of what good care and feed will do was on lot 22 owned by Marjorie Stunkard. This calf cost her $127.00 and it was one of the smallest calves in the consignment last April, but with good care and feed it won the blue ribbon in its group and sold for $1150.00

CALF CLUB NEXT YEAR

Plans for organizing a Calf Club for next year are being arranged. The Shorthorn Breeders have the plans about completed. Hereford and Holstein Breeders will probably get together on their plans of organization and conducting a club. The Calf Club is no longer an experiment and it is one of the ways to boost the live Stock Industry of Webster county.
